Mission: To be a catalyst and partner and to inspire, encourage and enable those who want to be involved in making Salisbury more sustainable.

What they do:

Salisbury Transition City (STC) is renowned for its annual celebration of sustainability, "People in The Park", which is founded on its belief that though not much can be achieved alone, when we work and learn from each other, we can achieve real change.

STC is not politically affiliated to any party or movement and because it is a grassroots movement it will drive change through such community action.

Consulted regularly by both county and city councils, STC has been a prominent force in initiating, fostering and bringing about local change in resource conservation, recycling, renewable energy and other improvements.

A key achievement has been to help raise awareness of the need for the local community to live sustainably. STC has been involved in the launch of many community-led initiatives and hopes to continue to be a springboard for sustainable projects in Salisbury and beyond.
